

TGDS on: Colloidal Silver

Colloidal silver is a natural way to strengthen your immune system, by helping fight off bacteria and viruses. It was used back in the day as doctors' go-to antibiotic. It works by suffocating invading organisms, preventing them from metabolizing oxygen and allowing the immune system to effectively remove the pathogen. Doctors began using modern antibiotics because they are faster working and cheaper to produce, but modern antibiotics can be harmful to body chemistry by disrupting the natural balance of bacteria that promote immune system health. Modern antibiotics can also promote resistant strains of diseases, whereas colloidal silver does not. Colloidal silver can be taken orally or applied directly to minor wounds.

At The Good Dog Spot, we add a mild dose of colloidal silver to the water buckets to help prevent the spread of disease that could occur by sharing a water source. We use it primary to prevent the spread of puppy warts, canine cough, and other potentially contagious diseases. We use Silver Biotics by American Biotech, which can be purchased on Amazon.

For any additional questions or concerns regarding colloidal silver, please feel free to talk to a member of TGDS staff.

